NEW PLANE FLIES TO VANCOUVER IN FORTY MINUTES

All expected some sensations, like those of looking down from the roof of a high building or going up in a swift elevator in an unusually high building but even these were lacking. It was just a case of reclining in an arm chair, gazing through the window and watching the panorama unfolding itself two thousand feet or so below like a gigantic slowly moving relief map.

The passengers had hardly realized the journey had commenced before they were at an elevation of 1,200 feet over the water and rising higher and higher until James Island was passed at 2,500 feet elevation with the plane traveling ninety-five miles an hour. From that height the Vancouver boat passed in Active Pass looked little more than a toy. Roads looked like so many yards of ribbon. Although the journey over water is probably the most fascinating part of the trip flying over the Delta country perhaps carries a greater impression of height. Carefully planted across a country that appears as flat as a table look little larger than sidewalk squares, everyone of a different shade of green. Cows seen grazing ahead looked up as the plane soared above them and then scattered in circles. At lower heights as the plane crossed the Delta farms hundreds of chickens could be seen frantically scampering for cover.

OVER VANCOUVER

The return trip, while it of necessity covered a lot of the same country, was interestingly varied, taking an hour. It was 6:10 when the plane left Lulu Island and a few minutes after 7 o'clock when it reached the home field. A cruise over part of Vancouver, wide circle over New Westminster lengthened the journey. Flying low as the plane drew near to Victoria passengers were able to pick out familiar spots. Mr. McGregor waved signals to his Summer home on Pender Island. Coming nearer to the city the machine traveled almost in direct line down Douglas Street to the Crystal Garden and one could read without difficulty store signs on awnings. A circle along the waterfront and then out in the direction of Mount Tolmie, another faultless landing and the journey was over.

There was probably not a passenger

ECZEMA ITCHED AND BURNED

On Arms and Legs Six Years. Cuticura Heals.

"When I was a small boy eczema broke out on my arms and legs in small pimples. As I grew older the eczema became wet and turned very red, and my clothing aggravated it. It itched and burned so that many a night I could not sleep. The trouble continued for six years. A friend advised Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a free sample. I found great relief after using it so purchased a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment which healed me." (Signed) Louis W. Plunk, 7123 Jasper Ave., Edmonton, Alta.

Wide Publicity Given Victoria In Seattle P.I. Motorlogue

Victoria is given wide publicity in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer on Sunday, July 22.

Frederic Karp, the writer of the article, toured Victoria and the southern part of Vancouver Island with George I. Warren, publicity commissioner and secretary of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, as guides.

How well Commissioner Warren did his job is seen by the following: Six p.m.—Constable George Warren adjusts belt, fixes chin strap and gives cheery welcome to the stranger. It is the beginning of a day of great promise.

Eight p.m.—Commander Noble, R.N., retired, dinner-jacketed, and erect as when striding his own quarter-deck, shows the visitor through his gardens and magnificent home. It is the end of a perfect day.

Not only a perfect day, but a glorious one, so filled with interest that the motorlogue is glad to roll their cars back aboard ship and seek seclusion of staterooms, to rest and talk over the delights of a week-end on Vancouver Island.

From the moment the motorist heads for Edmonds and the ferry until he gets back to Seattle, the trip to Vancouver Island is so crowded with interesting events that early happenings are forced into a background of delightful memory, formless and without sequence.

ON SCHEDULE

There were, for instance, the bridal parties, dinner aboard ship, the dancing, the music, the bridge, the arrival in Victoria on schedule. There was the brief but interesting clearing through the immigration and customs.

The Buick sedans of the party are brought ashore. This is where George I. Warren enters the picture. Warren is publicity commissioner of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, and managing secretary of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce. Let him do his worst, the motorists are as putty in his hands. Everything goes according to schedule with George. He's a one-man show, and resort proprietors and natives along the highways and byways set their clocks by him.

SPEEDY FERRY

But to "cut back," as they say in the movies, to Edmonds for a little footage. The City of Victoria, largest passenger ferry under the American flag in Puget Sound waters, makes two daily trips between Edmonds and the British Columbia capital, one at 8 a.m. and the second at 6 p.m. Motor stages from Seattle connect with the Edmonds pier, or if one takes his own car, he may drive right on board. The broad lower deck of the Victoria has room for seventy-five cars.

With Capt. J. Howard Payne, vice-president and general manager of the Edmonds-Victoria Ferry Company, present to welcome the Buick-Post-Intelligencer motorlogue party, and to accompany them on the tour of the island, there was nothing left to worry the travelers. But Payne's responsibilities ended when the passengers went ashore in Victoria. There's where George I. Warren stepped in. From then on till the crowd was back aboard ship, at 10:30 p.m., Payne was one of the tourists, submerged and awe-struck like the rest. Payne may not have an island paradise to exploit, but he has the means of taking it across there and he does it to the king's taste.

GEORGE DOES IT

But from the dock to Shawnigan Lake and back to the Causeway, let George do it. Might as well—he will anyway.

First thing George did, after shaking hands, was make a brief address of welcome, which ended in exactly thirty-two seconds with the remark: "Breakfast at 7:30, on the road at 8, and that don't mean maybe!"

Who said these Victorians loiter? They may, but their commissioner of publicity and tourists under his wing don't.

I keep thinking about that Devonshire cream and the hot drop biscuits. (Pardon me, but at Hamsterley Lake, where they call 'em hot buns.) I know this isn't the exact place in the sequence of the log for the Devonshire cream, but "blyme," George showed us.

RECEPTION IN VANCOUVER

Hundreds of people were present at the Victoria flying field to give the first passengers on the Victoria-Vancouver trip a rousing send-off and hundreds more were in Vancouver to hail the inauguration of the new service. Photographers rushed forward as the machine landed on the Vancouver flying field while scores of amateur photographers were eager for pictures of the first plane in the Victoria-Vancouver-Seattle passenger service and incidentally the largest aeroplane flying in Canada.

Ernest Eve, president of the company, and the directors of the company who were on the trip could be mentioned if they felt a thrill of pride at the success of the trip and the reception accorded. With one exception it is Victoria men who have got behind Mr. Eve and brought about the realization of the dream he had a year ago when he saw a passenger plane of this type in use in Detroit and visualized the present triangular service.

VICTORIA ENTERPRISE

"Here is an answer to those who say Victoria business men lack enterprise," commented one of the directors as he included the Vancouver welcoming crowd and the great machine in a gesture. It should be mentioned here that the directors are Ernest Eve, Cecil Eve, J. W. Spencer, R. H. B. Ker and James H. Beattie, all of Victoria, with Major Bertram Taylor of Vancouver. As Major Taylor's Summer home is in Patricia Bay is not stretching a point far to call it an all-Victoria enterprise.

SILENT HEROLD

While it was an eventful day for most concerned to Pilot Herold Walker it was just one in a hundred. Flying has been his business for over ten years, ranking him high amongst aviators with between three thousand and four thousand flying hours to his credit during which he has flown thirty-eight different types of machines, including a year as Seattle Victoria airmail pilot. Apparently to him the business of flying is as matter of fact as the business of driving a street car in a sparsely populated district is to a motorman.

Another veteran of the air, T. H. Cressy, formerly of the Royal Air Force, and more recently of the Customs patrol who has not been out of the flying game eight months since 1915, makes a fitting partner. With Mr. Eve also a pilot and taking the ship for part of the trip the machine is in capable hands.

The passengers making the trip were Major and Mrs. J. C. Pendray, Major Louis D. Taylor, Vancouver; J. E. Eve, president of the British Columbia Airways; Gordon A. Cameron, secretary of the company; J. H. Beattie and Major Bertram Taylor, directors; Fred McGregor, P. C. Rawlinson, Vancouver; P. J. Merriman, Vancouver Times.

DRINKING FLOWERS

Geraniums thrive if you feed them cold tea once in a while and hydrangeas seem to like weak coffee. Pour onto the roots only.

so much in such a short time that if the motorlogue party doesn't burn it now it's likely to be cut clear out of the picture.

Briefly, a pleasant evening was spent at the Hotel Douglas, where George and Signor Ross Casati "saw" that the visitors didn't suffer from "embar."

Not any. A constable Varney is brought into the story because the motorlogue got up a couple of hours earlier than a.m.—Aboard and away, George in the lead car right alongside the driver.

3:30 a.m.—Left the Parliament Buildings, right, the road to the Gorge and Esquimalt naval station. Three minutes at the Gorge to see the tidal waterfall that flows two ways, all depending on whether the tide is ebbing or flooding. (Say, George, have a heart! There's a day's enjoyment just loitering here.)

No chance! The speed limit is thirty-five miles an hour outside the municipal limits. If you don't drive to the common danger. Keep her at thirty-four miles and George will get you there on schedule.

To the right and left stately old live oaks in spacious gardens; homes hidden in the greenery. A man and his dog out for a stroll. Yes, the man carries a stick and his moustache droops just a trifle. Yes, he's smoking a pipe, and by golly, he looks like he enjoyed it!

There is a variety of scenery in and around Victoria, a restful spot, far escape that proves a treat even for a state of Washington tourist, who has sought out the beauty spots at home. George pointed out the distant Olympics, across the Strait, and magnificent Mount Baker to the north and east. They may be in the United States, but they serve as setting for that many-faceted gem that is Victoria.

HAMSTERLEY MALAHAT
Past the race course, besides the golf links, into the timber and up the winding Malahat. At the summit is Hamsterley Malahat. Malahat is native, but Hamsterley is England. From the repetition of the latter name, Hamsterley must be an ideal place to awaken home-sick memories.

From the crest of Malahat one looks down on the salt sea that cut into the southeast shore of Vancouver from the Gulf of Georgia and Haro Strait. There is Finlayson Arm and Saanich Arm. The Vancouver mathematics teacher said it was sixty-five pounds of salmon caught in forty minutes the day before. George said seventy-five. What's ten pounds of salmon more or less in a fisherman's paradise like Saanich?

CHINESE PORCELAINS
On down the mountainside drops the road, past pretty farms, by a boys' school, fashioned like one in the mother country, and on to the Forest Inn.

The inn is on the shore of beautiful Shawnigan Lake, a restful spot, far enough from the hurry of everyday life, but within easy distance over fine roads. Luncheon and a motorboat ride on the lake. C. F. Mason-Hurley and Mrs. Mason-Hurley, the proprietors of the inn, spent many, many years in China. He is an authority on Chinese porcelain. Shawnigan is a place one wants to see again.

But we must make the ferry that crosses Saanich Arm. George cracks the whip. Tallyho, or honk, honk, we are away!

Forty-five minutes on the ferry. George Warren can't hurry a ferry boat. Land again; more delightful countryside. A stop at the celebrated Butchart Gardens. Then back to the city and a dip into the salt water pool at Crystal Garden.

An hour's ride around the beautiful Marine Drive that skirts the seashore. One sees the finest homes in Victoria on this road. A pause at the Summer home of His Worship Mayor Pendray and Mrs. Pendray, to pay our respects. Then along the city park, on to Elk Lake. Lunch at Hamsterley Lake, with hot buns and Devonshire-cream confectionery.

Then the real surprise, the trip to the country farm home of Commander and Mrs. Noble sitting in the fifty acres, overlooking Cordova Bay.

Even Ned Douglas, the irrepressible special representative of the Edmonds-

Victoria Ferry Company, spoke in subdued tones. We stood in Capt. Noble's back garden and gazed seaward and saw the distant mountains and the islands of the Gulf fade with the dying day.

Capt. Noble loves his home across the sea, and he loves his Victoria. He should. He has many things to be proud of in both places. And his eastern bay windows look out to the morning sun that rises behind the snowy shoulder of old Mount Baker.

LAUNCH PARTY HAS ESCAPE

Four People Drift Helplessly in Strait Until Picked Up By Motor Princess

Tossing about on the waves somewhere on the Strait of Georgia is a derelict pleasure launch which a party of four were forced to abandon on Sunday evening last when the engine failed, and they were forced to board the Motor Princess which happened to come along just in time.

On Sunday morning Dr. W. Wilks and a lady guest started out from Vancouver for a pleasure cruise around Vancouver waters. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon the engine failed and, as the wind increased in force, the helpless launch lay broadside in huge seas which battered her sides and drenched her passengers with spray. Dr. Wilks rigged a white cloth to a pike pole and hoisted it in the hope that it might be noticed by some vessel.

STEAMED TO RESCUE
About 7:30 o'clock the second mate on the Canadian Pacific motor ferry Motor Princess, bound from Nanaimo to Vancouver, saw the distress signal through his glass and notified Captain Harry Anderson, who ordered the ship off the course and steamed to the rescue of the launch.

With considerable difficulty, owing to the exceptionally heavy seas, the Motor Princess was manoeuvred alongside and the stranded quartette were taken aboard and proceeded with the ship to Vancouver. The launch was left to drift with a tiny Yorkshire terrier, "Nipper," who absolutely refused to come away from the stranded vessel with his master and mistress. All efforts to take the dog away failed and Dr. and Mrs. Wilks were forced to leave him aboard the drifting launch.

Early Monday morning Dr. Wilks, in a friend's launch, cruised about the Strait vainly seeking his own ship. Yesterday morning a lumber company at New Westminster reported having sighted the derelict off the mouth of the Fraser River. Dr. Wilks immediately chartered a tug and set out for that point. He hopes to find "Nipper" safe and sound.

New Plane Beacons In United States

Dayton, Ohio, July 24.—Army aviators will have a transcontinental aerial highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific, along which they can fly day or night, through sunlight or rain, without getting off their course, when the six new radio beacons just approved by the War Department are erected.

Officials at Wright Field here, where the radio beacon was perfected and where one of the new high powered stations is to be established, looked upon the decision to erect the six new beacons, announced by Assistant Secretary Davidson, in charge of aviation, as an important step toward establishment of the "aerial highways" of the future.

The beacons, which will be located at San Francisco, San Antonio, Uniontown, Pa., Dayton, Mitchell Field, N.Y., and Washington, D.C., will send out chains of dots and dashes to insure aviators they are on their course without the aid of compass or maps.

Parties' Search For Missing Man Fails

Vancouver, July 24.—Maddened by mosquitoes, Edwin Ekton, young Englishman, met with a fatal accident on Suicide Creek, in the opinion of Staff Sergeant S. North, of the Provincial Police, Vancouver.

Five parties have searched the country northeast of Mission for the missing man since June 18, when he left the Norrish ranch at Dewdney on a two-day walking trip to Suicide Creek.

EGYPTIAN PROBLEMS

London, July 24.—The British Government took no part in the suspension of the Egyptian Parliament for three years by King Fuad, Sir Austen Chamberlain, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, stated in the House of Commons yesterday. Speaking in answer to a question, he emphasized that Great Britain regarded any problems respecting the Egyptian Parliament and constitution as subjects for the King of Egypt and the Egyptian people to determine for themselves.

VETERAN WINS ATLANTIC RACE

P. Hammond's Yacht Nina Finishes First in New York-Spain Competition

Yacht Nina, owned by Paul Hammond, of New York, today won the Queen's Cup in the Spanish Ocean Race, finishing at 2:56:32 p.m. while the larger yacht Elena, owned by William A. Hall of New York, was the first to finish in the larger class for the King's Cup, entering the harbor at 4:10:35 p.m.

The Nina, manned by a crew of amateurs, crossed the ocean from New York in twenty-five days and finished ahead of all other competitors. King Alfonso, members of his family and hundreds of noted Spanish yachtmen, were present for the finish. Admiral Burridge and many officers from the United States cruiser Detroit and Ambassador and Mrs. Hammond and members of the Embassy staff were present at the finish.

G. C. ROEDING TAKES OWN LIFE

San Francisco, July 24.—George C. Roeding, fifty-eight, father of the California fig industry and nationally known horticulturist, hanged himself from a high tension tower near Livermore yesterday.

Woman Loses Life In Road Accident

Abbotsford, B.C., July 24.—Coming to town to post a letter, Mrs. Thomas Andrews was given a ride in a motor truck by George Taylor, the driver. The truck collided with a suburban electric train at St. Nicholas crossing and upset. Mrs. Andrews being pinned underneath. She died on the way to a hospital. Taylor was not seriously injured.

The Sixteenth Canadian Scottish Band will provide four Sunday afternoon concerts in a Mason Hill Park in August. The City Council last night refused to divide the concerts between the City Temple Band and the Sixteenth Scottish.

JUDGE STOPS NEGROES' VOTE

Texas Bench Bars Colored Residents From Democratic Primary Election

Judge Duval West today defeated efforts to allow negroes a place in the Texas County Democratic primary by denying a temporary restraining order which would have allowed them to vote and refusing to call two additional judges, who must sit with him to hear other phases of the case.

J. G. Wimberley, a negro attorney, who was denied an absentee ballot on the strength of a resolution of the party executive committee excluding negroes, asked for a temporary restraining order which would prevent election officials from refusing ballots to negroes.

NEW SEARCH FOR SIX ITALIA MEN

Moscow, July 24.—The Soviet Italia Rescue Commission has received a request from the Italian Government to search for the missing six men carried away with the bag of the North Pole dirigible Italia, as well as an offer of two aeroplanes to assist.

The Italian Government also offered to finance repairs to the icebreaker Krassin and to supply coal and food for a further expedition.

Carranza Funeral Held in Mexico City

Mexico City, July 24.—Surrounded by flowers, the body of Capt. Emilio Carranza lay in state today as Mexico observed a day of national mourning. Government offices and schools were closed and public business was at a standstill.

A squad of the Presidential Guard stood stiffly erect with drawn swords around the casket of the filer whom his countrymen consider a martyr to the cause of international friendship. Capt. Carranza, who made a goodwill aeroplane flight from Mexico City to Washington, was killed shortly after he had left New York for a return air voyage to the Mexican capital.

MAN POLICE HUNT IS AT SEA

Futile Search in Vancouver and Milner, B.C., For W. Pilkington, Wanted in N.Y.

Police here today announced they were seeking William H. Pilkington, local representative of a British cotton converting firm, who was indicted last week in connection with the disappearance of $152,000.

Pilkington, who was employed by Joshua Hoyle & Sons Ltd. of Birmingham, England, disappeared June 13. He was last reported in Vancouver, B.C., a week ago when he, his wife and two small sons, with whom he formerly lived in Yonkers, checked out of a hotel. Detectives said they had learned the family's destination was presumably Japan.

INQUIRIES AT MILNER
Vancouver, July 24.—The police dragnet, out for days to catch William Pilkington, wanted in New York for alleged embezzlement, has missed its quarry, police believe. Pilkington, who was registered at a hotel here with his wife and two children, left the hotel on July 10, saying he was going to visit in Milner, B.C. Police have not been able to find him there and it is assumed he sailed on one of the Japanese liners which left this port after that date.

DEATH PENALTY FOR ESPIONAGE

Latvian Court Sentences Four to Death and Others to Prison For Espionage

Ryehista, Latvia, July 24.—Two former officials of the Latvian frontier guards and two guards were sentenced to death today when convicted of espionage on behalf of the Soviet. The charges were based on evidence given by a former employee of the Ogpuh Russi, a secret police operator named Nikitin.

Five other persons were sentenced to hard labor for life, two to ten years in Jacland, and six, including a woman, to five years. Eleven others were acquitted.

CABINET DISTRIBUTION IS DIFFICULT TASK FOR NEW HOUSE LEADER

BORDEN FOR MINES?
In the East Kootenay the choice of a representative seems to fall inevitably on Mr. Borden, who has been in the Chamber of Mines for Eastern British Columbia, which is demanding publicly that he receive that portfolio.

NORTHERN MINISTER
The North may not have a Minister at all in the new government. F. P. Borden of Prince George will be the only northern Conservative member in the House, and it is possible he may be given one of the less important portfolios like that of Provincial Secretary, but how Dr. Tolmie can do that and still satisfy other districts is a puzzle. Possibly the difficulty will be overcome by appointing more than eight Ministers, one for two without portfolios. Under British Columbia law a maximum of twelve men is allowed in the Cabinet, but only eight Ministers may receive salaries.

MAITLAND OPPOSED
Mr. Maitland seems sure of the Attorney-General's Department, as R. H. Pooley, Opposition leader in the Legislature, desires the "Speaker" only. There is some opposition among Vancouver Conservatives to Mr. Maitland's appointment, and it is just possible someone else will get the post. This might cause Mr. Pooley to take the portfolio, or failing that, H. D. Twigg of Victoria might be in line. Mr. Maitland's appointment, however, is generally expected.

SHELLY IS WILLING
Mr. Shelly was reported as unwilling to enter the Cabinet because of his business interests, but he is said to have changed his mind. It will be hard for Dr. Tolmie to refuse him the Finance portfolio. The only other name mentioned in connection with it is that of T. H. Kirk, also of Vancouver.

Mr. Hinchliffe has been slated for the Ministry of Education for years, having criticized the Government's educational programme in the Legislature on behalf of the Opposition since his election to the House. He has very positive ideas about education, and particularly on text books for public school use, and is expected to order a drastic shakeup in the present school curricula of the Province.

MEXICO PARTIES IN REALIGNMENT

CLERGY CO-OPERATE
Mexico City, July 24.—A statement by Police Chief General Antonio Rios Zertuche was regarded in some quarters today as paving the way for an official statement withdrawing the sting of the recent assertions that Roman Catholic clergy were to blame for the assassination of General Alvaro Obregon, President-elect of Mexico, last Tuesday.

The statement, made yesterday, said the clergy were co-operating in investigating the slaying. Last week General Zertuche announced that "responsibility for the crime lies with the Catholic clergy." It was thought today that this first assertion might be modified to apply to some individual or group instead of the clergy as a whole.

The latest statement served still further to lessen the tension in Mexico City. In religious circles a feeling of optimism concerning the future was observable.

General Zertuche also stated that Jose De Leon Toral, the art student who killed Gen. Obregon, had made a complete confession, but did not reveal its contents.

MORONES WOUNDED
New York, July 24.—Apparently authentic advice received here today state Luis Morones, former Mexican Minister of Labor, was fired upon as he was leaving a theatre in Mexico City the Sunday before the assassination of General Alvaro Obregon, President-elect of Mexico, and was wounded in the thigh.

NEW DISCUSSION OF MIGRATION

ber of Continental European emigrants who have lately found entry."

DECLARED NOT WANTED
The London Chronicle says the Industrial Transference Board's opinions are politely and guardedly expressed, but the Dominions' immigration regulations really speak for themselves. "The latest Canadian forms are the worst, but the Australian forms also reflect the opinions of men and parties who do not want immigrants," says The Chronicle.

The Industrial Transference Board was appointed by the Government to study the problem of unemployment in Great Britain and discover means of moving people from areas where the industries in which they worked could no longer provide places for them to regions where they could be absorbed into industries.

YOUTH ADMITS FOUR MURDERS

TELLS OF NAGGING
At first the police were baffled in their search for the murderer or the establishment of a motive. They now state that as circumstantial evidence piled up against young Boober, they obtained from him a confession that he shot his mother and brother because of "mother's and Fred's constant nagging of me about a girl I am crazy about. I had it planned for some time." The hired men, according to the police, were killed because they were coming up to the house after the shots. Boober is said to have confessed that he then threw down the rifle and went to a neighbor's to give the alarm.

A friend of the family approached the house just after the shooting, the confession is said to state, but luckily for Boober went away without entering.

"I don't know what I should have done if Counsellor Scott had come in," the confession is said to state.

"I don't care if I am hanged tomorrow," the police quote Boober as saying. "I want to get it over with and I don't want my father and sisters to have to appear in court."

Milk Precautions Urged at Inquiry

Vancouver, July 24.—Dr. C. H. Vrooman, testifying at the Vancouver milk inquiry yesterday, said there was no reason why milk should not be pasteurized, or "cooked," the same as other animal foods. This would entail the destruction of one type of vitamin, but this could be remedied by adding substances such as lemon juice.

"No raw milk should be used," he said, "except from tuberculin-tested herds," and he pointed out this was not a guarantee against other disease germs found in milk. He attributed the definite decrease in glandular and joint tuberculosis as shown by hospital reports to pasteurization and tuberculin inspection of cattle.

Dr. E. Carder said all milk not produced under regulations pertaining to certified milk should be pasteurized, and that all milk, after pasteurization, must be carefully handled to prevent contamination. He said certified milk was preferable to pasteurized milk.

PREMIER KING TO GENEVA

CANADA HAS PLAYED AN IMPORTANT part as a member of the League of Nations. She now occupies a seat on the Council. A Canadian presided over the General Assembly of the League in 1925. For these reasons, if for no others, it is fitting that the Prime Minister of the Dominion should take a turn as one of our delegates. Mr. Mackenzie King would be an interesting and forceful figure at the public sessions of the organization at Geneva. He would be able to speak with authority of the cordial relations which exist between the nations of this part of the New World, of the part Canada plays as interpreter between the republic on the south of us and the rest of the British Empire, and to point to the moral of an unguarded boundary stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It is true that he would not be discussing a new subject; but his gift of oratory, his intimate understanding and appreciation of the worth of friendly contact between the two branches of the English-speaking peoples, undoubtedly would enable him to impart a new significance to the theme.

For more than one hundred years Canada has gone her way in peace alongside one of the wealthiest and most powerful nations in the world. Disputes have cropped up from time to time; but peaceful means have been discovered to settle them. Old World sceptics sometimes tell us that there is nothing wonderful in two peoples speaking the same language, enjoying the freedom of similar institutions, living on such friendly terms with one another. There is no special force in the argument. One of the bloodiest wars fought in the last hundred years was fought between the American people themselves. Within the memory of all is the strife which rent Ireland for so long. The reason for the goodwill which exists between Canada and the United States lies deeper than this. Our people and the people in the neighboring republic realize the futility of war. They know it rarely settles anything, but always unsettles everything. They are opposed to the wanton destruction of human life and the needless dissipation of material treasure. That is why they do not get unduly excited when two peoples in some remote region of the Old World glare at one another and rattle the sword. As the years go by their attitude towards the peppy folk of continental Europe will be still more frigid unless a greater disposition to live on more friendly terms with one another shall manifest itself. It is well, therefore, that Premier King should give the New World ring to the debates of the next Assembly of the League of Nations with all the authority, as far as Canada is concerned, which he can command. He can not speak for the United States, but the far-reaching significance of the Kellogg peace proposal should find some encouraging reaction at Geneva.

RAMSAY MACDONALD

IT IS INTERESTING TO LEARN THAT the Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald intends to include Victoria in the itinerary of his tour of Canada next month. He will be here for two days and we may assume that he will address at least one public or semi-public gathering.

The first Labor Prime Minister of Great Britain has had a most colorful career. He was not born with the silver spoon in his mouth; he received his first education at a Board School. But he early revealed unmistakable signs of genius and it was not long before Ramsay MacDonald of Lonsmouth attracted the attention of his friends and the public at large. The lot of the common people was his concern. He is called a Socialist; but the title now should be qualified. There were those who shuddered at the thought of a government in the hands of MacDonald and Snowden and the rest of the Labor Party. Their alarms were groundless. True, the Ramsay MacDonald on the opposition benches was a different being from Ramsay MacDonald the Prime Minister. The duties of office completed the mellowing process which experience of life already had begun. It is not too much to say that the conservative nature of some of the legislation which the Labor Government of 1924 placed on the statute books startled the supporters of Mr. Baldwin not a little. That Government made mistakes. Mr. MacDonald brought the wrath of many of his colleagues on his own head when he refused a Liberal amendment in respect of the celebrated Campbell case which caused the downfall of his regime; but that was like the man. He chooses the course he considers the right one and nothing will deter him.

It was this outlook upon life and its problems which caused him much agony of mind and not a little personal discomfort when he denounced Great Britain's entry into the war. That is a closed chapter. The spirit of tolerance in Britain never was better exemplified than when they accepted the man whom she formerly had branded as a traitor as her Prime Minister.

The Rt. Hon. James Ramsay MacDonald is an outstanding world figure and a distinguished citizen of the British Empire. He is an author of renown, a journalist by profession, a brilliant speaker and lecturer, and a cultured gentleman. The forthcoming visit will be his second to Victoria. Incidentally, he is the first ex-Prime Minister of Great Britain to visit this city.

WHY CANADIANS ARE COMING BACK

IN THE MIDST OF ELECTION EXCITEMENT and the post-mortems that followed we may assume that an important statement made by a delegate to the meetings here of the Pacific Northwest Real Estate Association may have been overlooked. But in view of what some of our political friends have been telling us about United States prosperity and high wages it is worthy of comment.

The delegate was Mr. Horace A. Dryer, of Portland, who is director of the farming lands division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in the United States. He said that many people in the republic who have been "eking out an existence in the cities" are going back to the farm. "High wages are gone," Mr. Dryer proceeded, "and people are straining to get back to the land. Just think, three million people left the land from 1920 to 1925, over 77,000 farms being abandoned, which meant over 35,000,000 acres of good land producing nothing!"

Let it be noted that the speaker was a citizen of the United States in a position to know whereof he spoke, not interested in the rival claims of Canadian Liberal or Conservative. He calls it "eking out an existence in the cities." Here obviously is another part of the reason why Canadians are coming back to this Dominion from the United States in such large numbers.

MR. BENNETT'S PLAINT

EVEN IN THE FACE OF UNITED States statistics and figures available to himself in Canada, Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the opposition in the House of Commons, continues to tell the Canadian people that their most urgent duty is to stop what he calls the great exodus of Canadians to the United States. His remedy for this so-called condition, of course, is more tariff protection.

It is difficult to understand how a public man occupying the important position in the country's affairs that Mr. Bennett does so willingly will descend to tactics of this kind in the hope of making a little political capital. His latest speech along these lines was delivered at Oshawa on Saturday night, at which, by the way, his chairman, Hon. John M. Martin, Ontario's Minister of Agriculture, declared that the Canadian-Australian Treaty had worked "a grave injustice" on the people of this country.

It must be rather difficult for some newspapers like The Vancouver Daily Province, for instance, to be patient while the leader they support indulges in such fairy tales. Our Vancouver contemporary, incidentally, obviously refuses to admit that Mr. Bennett has painted a fair picture of Canada and Canadian conditions. It said editorially yesterday:

No one who has given any heed to the affairs of Canada during the past year or so can doubt that the sun of prosperity is shining brightly on this country. Here on the Pacific Coast we can feel its invigorating rays, and other provinces report that it is warming them and stimulating them to activity, turning their factory wheels, making waste areas blossom, developing cities, building up greater deposits in the savings banks. In the United States, long reputed to be the very home of prosperity, men seem to be in some doubt as to whether the sun is still shining or whether it has retired behind the clouds.

The Vancouver paper then proceeds to quote Mr. Roger Babson, whose trade and statistical service is one of the most reliable authorities on this continent, saying that he is complaining of the "lamentable lack of knowledge on unemployment, its extent and distribution" in the United States. He declares that there is no doubt that over the United States there are more workers out of jobs than there ought to be. He points out, as The Province notes, that employment is lower, payrolls are down and workers are showing less tendency to shift from job to job. Instead, they hold the positions they have, not knowing when they can get others.

No doubt Mr. Bennett expects to gain something by a constant reiteration of the label on the loyalty of our own people to their own country. He will probably use it more than ever after having seen how "it's time for a change" worked in British Columbia last week. But long before he has an opportunity to test it out he will have discovered that Canadian prosperity has become so firmly rooted that his voice will be like that of one-crying in the political wilderness.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

MATERNAL MORTALITY

Though we rightly rejoice at having more than halved infant mortality in the present century, we have signally failed to reduce maternal mortality and the deaths of the new-born—these two failures being really one. These grave reproaches remain. Our young mothers in England should be the safest in all the world and they are very far from being so. They belong to the race which gave Lord Lister and the antiseptic principle, Florence Nightingale and the nursing principle, Dr. J. W. Ballantyne of Edinburgh and the antenatal principle.

BRIDGE MADE EASY

by W.W. Wenworth

LOGIC VERSUS LUCK

As the bidding ends and the contract is declared, the first question which you naturally ask of yourself is: "How can my partner and I win the greatest possible number of tricks with the cards we hold?"

There is nothing mysterious about the playing of your hand. Neither genius nor a magician's skill is required. What you must know is how to manipulate your cards to your best advantage—you must understand the mechanics of the game. This knowledge can be gained by any person who devotes a little time to the study of bridge methods and watches others play.

As in bidding there are certain fundamental principles governing the playing of the cards, these principles you must master if you want to be an average winner. You must know what card to lead and what card to play after your opponent leads; you must know when to take a trick and when to sacrifice one so that you may capture more tricks later.

Many conventions, rules, tables and suggested plays are included in this series. To teach them to you is not the function of the following chapters. The author's aim is rather to develop a rational understanding of the "working tools" of the game. In bridge it is not sufficient to know merely how to accomplish a result, if you are to derive the maximum pleasure out of play, demand the reason for every suggested play. The greater your desire to know the logic of the manoeuvre the keener will be your interest in improving your game and playing better bridge.

JOTS FROM GEOGRAPHY

The City Council last night killed a proposal to consult citizens before boulevard trees are cut down. The public works committee favored securing reports from civic officials in cases where trees cause trouble to sewers, water or light services, and recommended submission of these reports to a committee of three citizens. The report was referred back for redrafting. The council ordered removal of two chestnut trees at the corner of Fort Street and Linden Avenue.

GAY ATTIRE

Mayor Pender's offer to donate sufficient paint to renovate the exterior of the City Hall, provided the city pay for the labor and the work is done forthwith, was referred to the works committee for report. Refinishing the City Hall in tinted cement stucco was proposed by Alderman P. H. Brown, an estimate by prominent contractor setting the cost at $4,750, including all materials.

BUILDING MUST GO

Failure to secure a building permit, before enlarging a bedroom caused the council last night to order Mrs. L. H. Ross of 617 Douglas Street to tear down an addition to her home now in course of construction. Alderman J. L. Mara believed Mrs. Ross had a legitimate claim against the contractor for failing to obtain the necessary permit.

LEADERS IN U.S. LAW ON VISIT HERE

Party of Over 300 in City as Guests of Seattle and Victoria Bar

Over 300 members of the American Bar Association from eastern and southeastern States, together with a number of judges from Washington, comprised a party visiting here yesterday from Seattle. They were entertained at a luncheon at the Empress Hotel as guests of the Seattle and Victoria Bar Associations.

Clyde M. Hadley and Maurice McKicken, two Seattle barristers, were in charge of details of arrangement for the visit of the members of the bar to this city and worked in collaboration with the Victoria Bar Association to perfect the programme of entertainment.

The party formed part of the great gathering of the American Bar in convention at Seattle on the fiftieth anniversary of the formation of the organization.

WELCOMED HERE

Attorney-General A. M. Manson gave a short address of welcome to the visitors at the Empress Hotel. He made timely references to the splendid spirit of co-operation and sympathy existing between Canada and the United States, of a promising future facing the Northwest. He was glad, he said, that the members of the American Bar could see this country in the process of development.

Province M. Pogue, a member of the executive committee of the American Bar Association, a former president of the Ohio State Bar, and now the chairman of the committee on trade and commercial law, responded on behalf of the guests.

He told his hosts that the party was composed largely of men from Virginia, Carolina, Florida and Georgia, with others from the farther Northwestern States, with a few of Washington's ablest benchers. He was proud in his thanks for the welcome that had been given.

Later, when the whole party had been driven by automobile over the Spanish Peninsula and had enjoyed a visit to Butchart's Gardens, he told A. D. Macdonald, president of the Victoria Bar Association, that "Benvenuto" was one of the most beautiful spots he had ever seen. The visitors expressed their impressions of Victoria in high tribute and complimentary phrases.

OTHERS COMING

On Saturday a special steamer will leave Seattle with a larger party of the Bar Association members. They will be coming along the Gulf Islands. Later they will dock at Pining the slant and many of them are expected to remain here for the week-end.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY

The Victoria Daily Times, July 24, 1903.

Ottawa, July 24.—The contract for the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railroad was signed to-day, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier has given notice of a bill for the construction of the national transcontinental road.

Victoria will be gratified to learn that the Dominion Government intends carrying out much-needed improvements in the inner harbor in the immediate future.

From Yokohama to Victoria the steamship Tosa Maru, which arrived Monday, was just thirteen days and ten hours on the voyage, having arrived a day ahead of schedule time.

An exciting cricket match was played on the canteen grounds, Reginald yesterday afternoon between the Collegiate School and a team from the S.M.S. Fleet.

No business was transacted at Tuesday's meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

There came near being a serious street car accident on Fort Street last evening. A light rig driven by a lady in company with a number of children was struck by a car coming down Fort Street. The horse was crossing the thoroughfare at the time, and was knocked down and carried for a considerable distance by the car. The occupants of the rig were thrown out, but no one was injured.

There were twenty boats fishing in the Straits off the entrance to the harbor at an early hour Thursday, and several of them had narrow escapes from danger in a sudden storm.

Yesterday afternoon the J.B.A.A. tournament was continued before a large number of interested spectators. Some of the games were very keenly contested.

Storm necessity impels the council to allow the destruction of certain stately mansions on Humboldt Street, and on Monday evening they gave permission to have them destroyed.

Aldermen Litchfield and Harvey believed the public to be careless in observance of the zoning by-law, because of inadequate advertising. Alderman Clearhouse pointed out that the council stripped itself of power to interfere when the zoning by-law was adopted.

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous

by Ruth Brittain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion. Pining the slant over the hand; attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit. Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in cases of colic, cholera, diarrhoea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over thirty years. With each package you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine. (Adv.)

PRaises MEN WHO PIONEER AIR FIELDS

Mayor Pendray and Mayor Taylor of Vancouver Congratulate Local Firm

Just wish to congratulate Ernest and Cecil Eve and all their associates who have helped them towards the realization of their dream—an air service between Victoria and Mainland ports," said Mayor J. C. Pendray at the civic luncheon tendered yesterday at the Douglas Hotel to the two local pioneers in commercial flying and to their friends and guests on the first flight of the great Ford tri-motored plane between Victoria and Seattle.

"A year ago," he pointed out, "Mr. Eve saw one of these passenger-carrying machines in Detroit. He had a vision then of what might be done in Victoria in the matter of an air link with the Mainland. He has worked on that project ever since. And now he has seen his dream come true with the arrival of the aeroplane from Detroit today."

"This aeroplane," said the Mayor, "is just as safe to travel in as any modern steamship. He admitted that on his first flight he had been a little timid. But on this it had been different. Mayor Pendray declared.

"Furthermore," he said, "Eve Bros. have retained the services of two of the best pilots in the country." He paid the two fliers, Pilot Harold Walker and the mechanical expert, T. H. Cressy, high tributes for past achievements and their present enviable reputations.

LEADS THE WAY

"All Victoria appreciates the service these men and those interested in this project have done for this city," Mayor Pendray asserted. "The city now has the distinction of being the first on the continent to inaugurate an international service of the kind. This air route links Victoria in the northwest with Atlantic City on the east. This gives some idea of the progress of air lines in America," the Mayor concluded.

THANKS PUBLIC

Ernest Eve, president of the B.C. Airways Ltd., spoke briefly when called upon by Mayor Pendray. He wished, he said, to take the opportunity of thanking "all those who helped to realize my dream of a year ago."

He looked forward to the continued support of the cities benefited by this fast air service, he said.

VANCOUVER AID

"I can promise you that I, and every member of the City Council, will always extend every effort to assist you in any way we can and I assure you that we wish you every success and have every confidence that you will succeed," said Mayor L. D. Taylor of Vancouver, who flew from Seattle in the big aeroplane yesterday. "I want to congratulate Mr. Eve and his associates in this great undertaking. For I think they have made a real achievement."

The civic luncheon was brought to an abrupt close when Mayor Pendray told his guests that cars were waiting to rush passengers to the hangar where the B.C. Airways' great passenger plane was ready to take off for Vancouver.

Cumberland, July 24.—Dr. and Mrs. R. F. Christie of Royston are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter on July 17.

In spite of the fact that approximately 900 cars have been licensed at Courtenay and 300 at Cumberland at the end of the first three months, Courtenay's share of license fees is $975 and Cumberland's share is $1,259.79, the distribution being made on the basis of the census taken in 1921.

Appreciation of Music Course
Toronto Woman Starts Lecture Series at Summer School

Appreciation of music is being taught in a novel course inaugurated at the Victoria Summer school yesterday afternoon by Miss Mabel Rich of Toronto, who gave the first of a series of five talks on this subject.

Declaring that practice and experience were as valuable in listening to music as in the more mechanical arts, Miss Rich described the principal themes of a number of well-known compositions, which were afterwards interpreted by means of orthophonic records kindly loaned by Fletcher Brothers and Cecil Heaton of David Spencers Limited.

Examination of the class followed the playing of each selection, affording an immediate demonstration of each auditor's powers of concentration, analysis and musical sense.

Miss Rich's remaining four lectures this week, to be given at 3 o'clock each afternoon, are to be as follows: Tuesday, "William Tell" overture; Wednesday, "How to Listen to Orchestral Music"; Thursday, "Peer Gynt" suite; Friday, "Nationality in Music".

The lectures are being given in connection with the Summer School music course being conducted by T. C. Wickett and F. Waddington.

Useful Tips On Cooking Vegetables

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

In their interesting volume on the "How and Why of Cooking," published by the University of Chicago Press, the Misses Evelyn G. Halliday and Isabel T. Noy when the onion is peeled, onions should be cooked until tender and no longer, preferably in a large amount of rapidly boiling water.

All vegetables, except those of the cabbage family and onions, are best cooked in the opposite manner, that is with a small amount of water in a steam cooker or in a pressure cooker.

Victoria W.I.—The regular monthly meeting of the Victoria W.I. was held on Friday, Mrs. Feden, the president, in the chair. Seventeen members answered the roll call. There were also two visitors. The following committees reported progress: Industries, public health and social. It was decided to hold the next meeting on the second Friday in August. Final arrangements for the Fall fair will be made at that meeting. The Institute will loan their records on Thursday, July 26, for the judges' contest.

Loads of love, MARYE.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary

Breakfast—Sliced bananas and milk, strawberries with cereal and cream, poached eggs on graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Diplomatic pie, graham bread and butter sandwiches, fruit salad, rolled cake cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Roast leg of lamb, mint sauce, new potatoes in cream sauce, buttered peas and carrots, asparagus salad, pineapple sherbet, sunshine cake, milk, coffee.

The diplomatic pie is just a glorified arrangement of left-overs. It can be served in individual baking dishes or one large one. The housekeeper who manages her left-overs cleverly can afford better food to begin with than the one who wastes what is left after each meal.

DIPLOMATIC PIE

One cup diced left-over meat, 1 cup diced carrots, 1/2 cup tiny onions, 1/2 cup strained canned tomatoes, 2 cups mashed potatoes, 1 tablespoon butter, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons milk, white 1 egg.

Combine meat, carrots, onions and tomato juice. Add boiling water to cover and simmer until tender. If the vegetables have not been previously cooked they should be almost tender before adding the meat. Season mixture with salt and pepper and thicken with flour stirred to a smooth paste with a little cold water. It will probably take about 1 tablespoonful of flour to thicken the liquid to the consistency of gravy. Season hot mashed potatoes with butter, salt and milk and fold in the egg white beaten until stiff and dry. Put the meat and vegetable and gravy mixture into a buttered baking dish, cover with prepared potatoes and make in a moderately hot oven until the potato mixture puffs and browns on top.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MARYE MEYER ELDER

Mrs. Elder will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

WHAT CHILDREN MAY LEARN

FROM NATURE AT FIRST HAND

It is a rather terrifying sound to the average parent who may have only the vaguest conception of plants and animals, birds and insects herself. She knows that it is of the utmost benefit to the child to be taught the secrets of nature, but she hasn't a very clear idea of how to go about it. Books are helpful, but children run away from books. What is there left?

When young son brings in a wriggling animal and says: "Don't be afraid of it, mother. It's only a lizard," his nature study has begun. Even if your soul craves within you at the sight of the strange insects and vipers he manages to dig up, one has best look upon them with interest and curiosity. The suggestion may be made that the lizard can be kept from destruction if caged safely, and such a suggestion will be followed. We have personally squelched back our natural repugnance for some of these beasts in order that son may study them. Thank heavens he doesn't bring home any worms! I fear his nature study would suffer.

Flowers and insects are best studied in their own

The Wife-Ship Woman

By Hugh Pendexter

The two pirogues passed from view, remained motionless for some twenty minutes, waiting to see if they were laying a ruse, and after making up their minds they began to steal away back to surprise us. At last I was satisfied that Darnoon at the most had caught only a suggestion of motion from the corner of his eye. Doubtless he decided it was some animal. I rose and returned to reproach mademoiselle or her indiscretion. What I saw held me long. It was an entirely new scene. The wife-ship woman, in her eyes like war-beacons, her breath came fast and furious, and the ivory of her face was stained a vivid scarlet. She was staring at me like a madwoman, and he small dirk was drawn back for a strike.

"You canaille!" this amazing creature hissed at me, as I stood there with my mouth open, like an expiring fish. You dare lay a hand on me in anger! I don't lie! I read your eyes. You were angry and you dared lay a hand on me while so base!"

I could only think of a panther's help, spitting and clawing. She was such a tiny tornado that I must have missed a trifle. Certainly there was something in my face that caused her to leap forward. Then I was ashamed of myself, and felt only pity for her. I dropped my arms to my side and waited her pleasure. She pressed closer, her gaze baleful and venomous, meeting mine squarely. Just as I believed she was going to strike she staggered back with a wild little cry, dropped the weapon and sank on her knees and hid her face in her hands.

It was horribly pathetic; and I wished Joe Labrador, or any other luck-eater voyager could have been there to give me some of the kicks I felt I deserved.

I scooped her up and stood her on her feet, replaced the dirk in the sheath outside the blouse, and patting her awkwardly on the shoulder said:

"There, there, child. I am sorry. With her hands still pressed to her face she managed to repeat:

"You laid a hand on me in anger!"

"I'm sorry," I simply reiterated. "We're partners of the woods lose all sense of fitness. We are crude. My only thought was that the Fox would see us; then we would be hard put to escape him and his Chockaws. I meant to tell you."

She turned and walked back to the drogue, her braids over her shoulders and hanging down in front like an Indian woman's. In truth, I felt blundering and I feared my grip on her small ankle had been unconsciously severe. I watched her as she walked away with small head bowed to see if she limped. I rejoiced when she showed no signs of hurt from her rough tumble. And what a fine-spun, sensitive nature! With perhaps her life in peril she took exception to my mode of preserving it, and she implied superiority.

On what did she base her autocratic assumption of my style of making her look from view of Darnoon the Fox? This little forlorn sparrow from the streets of Paris—it all was completely beyond me. And yet the pain at having caused her grief was more the less eloquent. Taking my time I also returned to the pirogue, and seated myself apart from her and lighted my pipe. "Why do we not proceed?" she asked without looking at me.

"Darnoon and his red butchers must be given time to draw ahead," I told her.

"I think, Monsieur Brampton, you best take me back to the Bayou de Jean, where I can make my way to la Nouvelle Orleans. If that be too much bother, follow a little like this and will make any way. Or a raft."

"I was most careful to maintain my gravity as I listened to her absurd request. I took some time to think it over, apparently. Then I gently replied:

"You are your own mistress. I only wish you to act wisely. If you really desire to go back of course I will take you. Do you care to tell me your reason for returning? Is it because you cannot trust yourself longer to my protection?"

My question worked the last effect I could have desired. It reduced her to humility. Her transition from the tone of the grande dame with indignation to that of a girl humbly supplicant made me feel like a sany. She was kneeling before me and stretching up her small hands and, like a penitent child, begging me to overlook her behavior.

"For God's sake, don't!" I cried in English, catching her wrists and pulling her to her feet.

"But I raised—raised a mortal weapon—against you," she sobbed. Luckily my impulse to ridicule the tiny dirk was checked in time to permit my expression of gravity to remain.

"It was but your way of showing resentment," I said soothingly. "It was perfectly natural. One does not like to be mauled about unless one knows it's for one's own best good. Now that you know that, it is as if it never happened. You are nervous, Mademoiselle Dahisgaarde. You are not yourself. You have suffered much mentally. Let us say no more about it. It is nothing after one has slept and rested. So, shall we fare north again? It is not wise to let our pursuers get too far ahead."

Without a word she entered the pirogue, and seated herself on the blankets. I placed my musket in the bow, ready for my hand, and paddled slowly around the last bend, my eyes intent to search the upper reaches of the river. There was no sign of the two pirogues.

"Monsieur Brampton," she softly said as I drove the pirogue against the bank to allow her to land while I dragged it through the shallows into the great river; "I can go no further until I know the truth."

Here was an enigma cropping out of this small bundle of puzzles. "Mademoiselle, I listen," I politely told her.

She stood with one foot on the side of the canoe, waiting for me to speak before she would even step ashore. "I must know," I said, "that your heart holds no resentment against me," she said.

I resisted a temptation to dismiss the matter lightly, as that was sure to embroil us in further misunderstandings. It would have been more simple if she would remain on one plane, that of child, or woman. So I made my mind very serious as I stood there holding her hand and earnestly declared:

"There was never anything to forgive. But if you must have it so, then you are forgiven. I have never held resentment against you and never can. Now do you believe me?"

The sudden radiance of her face astounded me. One would have thought I had granted her some rare boon. She bobbed her head in place of words and sprang ashore. I waded through the shallows, pretending not to observe her fight for self-control, and prolonged the task of dragging the log canoe through the ripples. At last I had the pirogue in deep water, and she, quite composed, took her place and I swung into the river.

There was no sign of Darnoon and his companions ahead. As the sun was now close to the western forest crown I began to fear they had gone into camp and that I might be approaching too close. We had been passing through the territory of the Bayagoulas and had not see an Indian. I suspected that they were watching us, and that they were making new medicine to the Opossum, their chief deity, before joining with the Chockaws as allies of the French. If the Chockaws came into the fight then their hereditary enemies, the fierce Chokasaw, would stand by the English; and Steur de Bienville would find the English in the line.

"Why do we go ashore?" she whispered over my shoulder, as if fearing the river would catch her words. "We have high ground and good water."

I got the canoe ashore and helped her out and packed the blankets and musket and smoked beef up the bluff. While she sat under a tall tree, with her braids over her shoulders, I gathered bark and made her a shelter with the opening toward the spot where I would build the fire. I knew of spring back a bit from the bluff, and from this I procured a gourd of water. Then I gathered dry wood and started a small blaze and instructed her how to feed it as we would have a bed of coals for cooking our supper. Then, taking a hook and line, I informed her she was perfectly safe and that I would soon return from trying for a fish in the river.

I lighted the fire and descended to the river without having spoken a word. For twenty minutes I patiently sought my fish without success. In straightening up I was surprised to behold her slim form on a log behind me.

"You here!" I exclaimed. "But I thought you were to remain and feed the fire!"

"I did not care for the loneliness, monsieur," she calmly informed me. Her disregard to my wishes—in my mind I called it orders—annoyed me. However, I managed to smile and remind her:

"We will have lost much time in making coals for broiling the fish."

"One must catch the fish first," was the quiet response. "Besides, I placed the wood on the blaze monsieur started. The coals will be ready."

"All the wood?" I sharply demanded. She bridled at my tone. A tug at my line demanded my attention. After a brief fight I landed a catfish. She watched it with a keen eye. I hooked and coiled my line; then she said:

"The wood was to burn!"

"Yes, yes. But not all at once. A little at a time."

"I was not to know without being told," she said with much dignity. "Without a word she entered the pirogue, and seated herself on the blankets. Here was an enigma cropping out of this small bundle of puzzles. "Mademoiselle, I listen," I politely told her.

She stood with one foot on the side of the canoe, waiting for me to speak before she would even step ashore. "I must know," I said, "that your heart holds no resentment against me," she said.

I resisted a temptation to dismiss the matter lightly, as that was sure to embroil us in further misunderstandings. It would have been more simple if she would remain on one plane, that of child, or woman. So I made my mind very serious as I stood there holding her hand and earnestly declared:

"There was never anything to forgive. But if you must have it so, then you are forgiven. I have never held resentment against you and never can. Now do you believe me?"

The sudden radiance of her face astounded me. One would have thought I had granted her some rare boon. She bobbed her head in place of words and sprang ashore. I waded through the shallows, pretending not to observe her fight for self-control, and prolonged the task of dragging the log canoe through the ripples. At last I had the pirogue in deep water, and she, quite composed, took her place and I swung into the river.

There was no sign of Darnoon and his companions ahead. As the sun was now close to the western forest crown I began to fear they had gone into camp and that I might be approaching too close. We had been passing through the territory of the Bayagoulas and had not see an Indian. I suspected that they were watching us, and that they were making new medicine to the Opossum, their chief deity, before joining with the Chockaws as allies of the French. If the Chockaws came into the fight then their hereditary enemies, the fierce Chokasaw, would stand by the English; and Steur de Bienville would find the English in the line.

"Why do we go ashore?" she whispered over my shoulder, as if fearing the river would catch her words. "We have high ground and good water."

I got the canoe ashore and helped her out and packed the blankets and musket and smoked beef up the bluff. While she sat under a tall tree, with her braids over her shoulders, I gathered bark and made her a shelter with the opening toward the spot where I would build the fire. I knew of spring back a bit from the bluff, and from this I procured a gourd of water. Then I gathered dry wood and started a small blaze and instructed her how to feed it as we would have a bed of coals for cooking our supper. Then, taking a hook and line, I informed her she was perfectly safe and that I would soon return from trying for a fish in the river.

I lighted the fire and descended to the river without having spoken a word. For twenty minutes I patiently sought my fish without success. In straightening up I was surprised to behold her slim form on a log behind me.

"You here!" I exclaimed. "But I thought you were to remain and feed the fire!"

"I did not care for the loneliness, monsieur," she calmly informed me. Her disregard to my wishes—in my mind I called it orders—annoyed me. However, I managed to smile and remind her:

"We will have lost much time in making coals for broiling the fish."

"One must catch the fish first," was the quiet response. "Besides, I placed the wood on the blaze monsieur started. The coals will be ready."

"All the wood?" I sharply demanded. She bridled at my tone. A tug at my line demanded my attention. After a brief fight I landed a catfish. She watched it with a keen eye. I hooked and coiled my line; then she said:

"The wood was to burn!"

"Yes, yes. But not all at once. A little at a time."

"I was not to know without being told," she said with much dignity. "Without a word she entered the pirogue, and seated herself on the blankets. I placed my musket in the bow, ready for my hand, and paddled slowly around the last bend, my eyes intent to search the upper reaches of the river. There was no sign of the two pirogues."

"Monsieur Brampton," she softly said as I drove the pirogue against the bank to allow her to land while I dragged it through the shallows into the great river; "I can go no further until I know the truth."

New Westminster Sure To Make Soccer Final As Result Of Big Win

After Being Held To Draw by Winnipeg Eleven in First Half Royals Step Out and Smother Opponents Under Avalanche of Goals; Montreal Canadian Nationals Likely to Win Eastern Championship and Meet Royals in Finals For Canadian Title

Winnipeg, July 24.—The Royals, of New Westminster, are practically assured of playing in the Dominion football final. Here last night in an uninteresting game, because it was so one-sided, the Royals outplayed the Winnipeg Westbrooks to mark up a 7 to 1 victory.

Six of the seven victorious goals were gained in the second half when the Royals, with brilliant field play, had everything their own way.

With the Montreal Canadian Nationals' decisive 6 to 2 victory at Fort William last night, there is every probability that the Royals and Nationals will meet in the Dominion final here Saturday and Monday.

SUPERIOR EVERYWHERE

There was not a department of the game that the Royals did not excel in. From the goal-mouth out, the Coast players proved speedy and worthy contenders for championship honors. However, the Westbrooks, a young second division squad, which made local soccer history by winning the Manitoba championship, did well to hold the Westminster boys to a draw in the first half.

Played in a steady downpour of rain before 9,000 fans, Westbrooks started the scoring four minutes after the whistle, but their advantage was not long held. Catching on to a fast rebound Russell registered to even the tally. From then on, the Royals maintained pressure in Westbrooks' territory, though the half ended in a draw.

A PROCESSION

For a few minutes at the opening of the second half, Westbrooks pressed hard in an endeavor to gain the lead, but their efforts were without avail. Their combination play, which brought them victory against Saskatoon here last week, completely collapsed, and they were forced back to local territory. After seventeen minutes of hard going, Coulter, on a free kick from Russell, notched the second tally for the Coast invaders and from then on it was a procession for the visitors.

Port William, July 24.—With a decision of 6 to 2 over the Port William Legion, champions of New Ontario, the Montreal Canadian Nationals, the eastern titlholders, advanced a step nearer the Dominion football final. The Nationals fielded a strong team last evening and displayed fiery attacks during the match. The second and final match of the series will be played here Wednesday evening.

PLAYING JOKES ON EVE OF BATTLE

Speculator, N.Y., July 24.—Though a test of his championship is but forty-eight hours away, Gene Tunney had yet to reach the irritated stage which tradition demands of a prize fighter on edge.

This unique ruler of fistiana, now self-trained to the last muscle for the defence of his crown against Tom Heeney, the New Zealand challenger in the Yankee Stadium on Thursday night, has turned to jokes to divert his mind from the contest. His victim was Billy Gibson, his manager.

Knowing Gibson's aversion to flying, Tunney caused a fake telegram to be sent to his manager containing a famous aviator's offer to make a special flight up here to carry him back to New York as a reward for his deep interest in aviation.

Gibson was flustered when he received the bogus invitation. He deliberated over the message for many minutes before showing it to Tunney, who in urging him to accept the offer, pointed out that it would be the height of discourtesy to decline the invitation of a national hero. This argument finally overcame Gibson's objection and he composed a wire of acceptance which delighted Tunney and his assistant jesters.

WRIGHT AND GUEST SHATTER ANOTHER ROWING RECORD AND PILLING OUT-THROWS SWEDES

Amsterdam, July 24.—Dorval Pilling, of Cardston, Alberta, Canada's champion javelin thrower, out-threw the Swedish stars by ten feet in trials for the Olympic games this afternoon.

The Swedish athletes, however, ruled favorites for the event. The feature Canadian showing was the clearance of the bar at 13 feet 6 inches by Vic Pickard, of Hamilton, pole vault.

United States representatives were astonished at the mark, which is 5 1/4 inches better than the Canadian record and a full foot better than the mark Pickard made at the recent Olympic trials.

Sloten, Holland, July 24.—Joe Wright and Jack Guest, of Toronto, rowing in their double shell, beat the 1,000-metre course record by five seconds in their morning trial on the Canal to-day. The Canadian Olympic aspirants covered the distance nine seconds faster than the United States crew who rowed immediately afterwards.

PITTSBURGH NOW DISTURB FLAG-SEEKERS

Pirates Causing Commotion in National League By Their Winning Ways

Babe Ruth's Fortieth Home Run Put Him Far Ahead of Schedule; Yanks Lose

The Pirates of Pittsburgh have set sail on a Corsair cruise that threatens to disturb the equanimity of all the National League's assorted list of pennant contenders, actual and alleged.

A 2 to 1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the league's only game yesterday put the Pirates only five points back of the Dodgers, who are at the top of the second division. The Fred Fussell, young Corsair south-paw, and Doug McWeeny, most effective of Uncle Robbie's pitchers in recent weeks, booked up in a pitching duel that was the Pirates' way because the Dodgers and McWeeny elected to get all the bad baseball out of their system in the sixth inning. In that frame, an error by Hendrix, a misplayed fly ball by Babe Herman, a balk by McWeeny and Grantham's single gave the Pirates two runs and the game.

Bresler's double and Bancroft's single gave the Robins their only tally in the second inning.

Babe Ruth's fortieth home run of the season failed to save the Yankees from defeat at the hands of the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 3.

The Babe's drive, however, put him twenty-eight games, thirty days and ten homers ahead of his record breaking pace of 1927. The Yanks retained their ten and one game lead on the American League field, however, for the Athletics were blanked by Gaston and the Washington Senators 5 to 0.

It was the Athletics' first defeat in eight games. The Browns and Senators slugged Rommel for three runs.

EQUAL RECORD
George Bieleholder, former Western Leaguer, pitched the St. Louis Browns to a 10-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians. The Browns pounded sixteen hits off three Cleveland hurriers and took occasion at the same time to equal the major league record for sacrifices. The Browns committed the suicide act eight times during the game, a mark held by several major league clubs in the past years, but never bettered.

Yesterday's results were:

ROCCO ROCKS GENARO SOME

Canadian Flyweight Gains Draw With World's Titleholder; Savage Fight

Toronto, July 24.—Battling for the world's flyweight championship at the Coliseum here to-night, Frankie Genaro of New York, the title holder, and Steve Rocco of Toronto, flyweight champion of Canada, fought to a ten-round draw, Genaro therefore retaining the crown.

The scrap was the most savage Toronto fans have seen in years. After a tame first round, the two stood toe to toe most of the time and gave all they had. First the advantage went to Genaro, but later the Canadian lost his nervousness and piled up points with an overhand left, which the New Yorker was unable to block.

The three officials, two judges, and the referee, divided on the decision, one calling it a draw and the other favoring Rocco, and the third voting for Genaro.

SATISFIED WITH DECISION
The 9,000 fans who packed the Coliseum were satisfied with the decision and with Rocco's showing.

Genaro had a slight advantage in the first three rounds. Rocco took the next two handily and then the champion came back to win the sixth, seventh and eighth. The ninth was even, Genaro taking the tenth by a big margin.

The champion had distinct advantage in the infighting, but Rocco's sparring left off this fight. The fourth and fifth rounds, Rocco's, saw the heaviest fighting of the bout. Rocco staggered the champ time and again with one-two punches.

Genaro later forced the Toronto man to clinch and moved down his resistance with stinging right uppercuts.

CONTINUES IN FORM
Brookline, Mass., July 24.—Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., continuing to show last week's splendid form, defeated John Van Ryn, Orange, N.J., in four sets yesterday, 7-9, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2, to win one leg on the eighth ball in the thirty-fourth annual Longwood Bowl tournament.

Temple (minus 30) defeated Waugh (minus 15), 6-2, 6-3.
Hodgson (minus 30 1/2) defeated Keson (minus 15 1/2), 13-11, 6-0.

"TORCHY" PEDEN GETS FILL OF MONSTER MELON

"Torchy" Peden, Victoria member of the Canadian Olympic cycling team, is now crossing the Atlantic for the first time, having sailed from Quebec aboard the Empress of Scotland on July 18. It is hoped he will prove as good a sailor as a bicycle rider and not be troubled with seasickness.

A letter, dated July 17, was received this morning by the sporting editor of The Times from "Torchy" and was as follows: "We left Toronto last night after a great send-off. There were about three hundred fans down at the Union Station. They had every modern apparatus for making a noise. The fans ended the festivity by making a presentation to the team as the train left. This consisted of one watermelon. It would easily have made about four good sized ones. We had our fill before going to bed.

"This morning we had a drive around Montreal, then attended a banquet tendered the Olympic athletes by the citizens of Montreal. We leave in the morning for Quebec.

"The team is now complete. We have with us Lew Elder, nicknamed the "Wild Irishman," and Andy Boutin who answers the call of "The Little Dutchman." It is hard to find a name for Jim Davies but it will likely be "The Wild Man of Borneo." Joe La Porte has not been named yet but he soon will be. My name of "Torchy" seems to stick."

Canadian Swimmers, Marathoners and Wrestlers at Amsterdam Examined

Doctors to Watch Action of Sports on Organs of Men Performing

Amsterdam, July 24.—The Canadian swimmers, swimmers and marathoners about to proceed to their training quarters to-day to continue the grind for the Olympic games, were suddenly ordered to the station for X-ray examinations.

The heart, elbows and lungs of the swimmers and swimmers were examined and the heart, knees and lungs of the marathon runners received special attention.

The marathoners will undergo a special examination on August 1, four days before the marathon race.

The five Canadian swimmers—Garret Ault, Ottawa; Monroe, Bourne, Montreal; Alfred Phillips, Toronto; Walter Spence, Montreal, and Dorothy Prior, Toronto, have been spending an hour in the waiting each morning and an hour and a quarter in the afternoon.

Jimmy Rose, the swimming coach, to-day took Miss Prior to the marine dock to practice the 200 metres breast stroke and 100 metres free style.

As for the wrestlers they are keeping fit by judicious workouts, mainly composed of a mile run around the city followed by "physical jerks" in front of the railway station.

When the West Indies continue their tour of England this morning it was seen that Chapman, English captain, and Jupp, who were compelled to retire through injuries yesterday were not on the team. Their places were taken by Leyland and Taylor, while Somerset acted as captain. A light drizzle was falling.

St. Hill 33, and Francis 0, continued the battling with the tourists' bowling being a run out. The tourists' bowlers went a few runs later. Constantine was not comfortable and was easily caught, and with his passing the fate of the West Indies was sealed. It required only fifty minutes to get rid of the tourists this morning.

Scores: West Indies, first innings 206.

SIXTH HOLE A TRICKY AFFAIR

The short sixth hole afforded a fine example of what I mean. This hole is about 160 yards in length, and the hole was placed very near the back of the green and close to a bunker on the left side. On Saturday I had tried twice to play the hole with a number four iron and had come to grief each time, taking a four in the third round and a five in the fourth. So in the play-off I played each time a firm mashie shot which pitched the ball very high right up to the line of hole, each time about the middle of the green, some twenty or thirty feet to the right of the hole. I was afraid to go straight for the flag.

Farrell, on the other hand, appeared to like the place where the hole had been cut, and went boldly for it on both occasions. Using a number four iron, Johnny played the shot modertory of the Rivermead trophy. One hundred and fifty-three players will be included in the draw which will be announced to-morrow, and these will play eighteen holes Thursday and Friday, but the field will be reduced for the final thirty-six holes on Saturday.

In the matter of quality practically all the leading stars of Canada and the United States will be among those present, the most prominent players whose names are missing being Johnny Farrell, the United States open champion; Billy Burke, Al and Abe Reppas and Bill Melhorn, but Tommy Armour, defending champion and recent winner of the Metropolitan open, will be present to defend his title along with Macdonald Smith, Leo Diegel, Willie MacFarlane, Archie Compston, Walter Hagen and Larry Nabholz.

PREFERRED SPOON SHOT

For the longer shots Johnny displayed a decided preference for the spoon in place of the number 1 and 2 irons. I do not believe that he played one shot all day with any iron stronger than a number three. On the ninth and fourteenth he brought out his spoon when he was well within the range of a number one. And I shall never forget how he played that spoon. I think he is one of the greatest masters of the spoon I have ever seen. His shot to the fourteenth in the afternoon was a masterpiece.

The one noticeable characteristic of Farrell's mashie-nublie play aside from its startling accuracy, was the fact that he addressed the ball nearly opposite his right foot. The method usually seen begins with the ball much farther forward, about on a line with the left heel. Johnny, however, appeared to play this shot with a sharply descending blow, with the face of the club hooded just a little. The shot always had a perceptible curl from right to left which I have come to believe makes for better control than the once popular fading shot.

Of course little can be said about Farrell's putting which has not already been written. But I think, as a very strong link in an otherwise well-rounded and polished game, the new champion has all the shots that a champion should have.

Most Stars Use All-court Game

By GEORGE M. LOTT JR.

Before the reign of William T. Tilden, it was possible to win championships with a one-sided game. But with Tilden came the all-court game. His influence upon the younger players has brought this about, because it is only natural that youngsters, watching the champion play, should copy his style.

Up to the start of Tilden's reign, the net game, prevailed and the ground strokes were the weakness. "Little Bill" Johnston, champion in 1914 and 1919, was a consistent net rusher, where he volleyed severely and continually forced his opponent by these tactics. Maurice McLaughlin, twice national champion, also was a net man.

R. Norris Williams, when at his best, was more or less of a forerunner of what was to come, because on these days he was as good in the backcourt as at the net. Then in 1920 Tilden brought the all-around game to the fore, and it is still in force.

This type of game has a distinct advantage over the other type of game in that it enables the player to meet almost any attack offered. If forced to stay in the backcourt, it may be done with perfect security, on account of the reliability of the ground strokes. If you desire to take the net, it may be done behind, forcing ground strokes that place you in an advantageous position.

During the last open championship I played four of the six tournament rounds with Johnny Farrell. Although I had at the time plenty of trouble of my own, I had opportunities to observe Johnny's play such as had never before come to me. Somehow, an important match removes all the frills from a player's method, and he resorts always to the style that is for him the most natural and the simplest to employ.

First, of course, I was interested in the way Johnny handled his iron clubs. His method in this department I have always regarded as radically different from that of other first-class players, and I have wondered how it would hold up under the strain of competition. Certainly I found that it would hold up very well.

The greens at Olympia Fields were so very soft during the tournament that the problem of stopping the ball with backspin was practically eliminated. On only one hole of the eighteen, the third, was there need for anxiety on that score, and on that hole Farrell's second shot pitched the ball to the hole with plenty of spin. That hole showed me right off that Johnny could stop them if he wanted to and made even more interesting his preference for pitching short of the hole with considerable run.

STOCK MARKETS FINANCIAL NEWS GRAIN MARKETS

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

By Branson, Brown and Co. Ltd.

Winnipeg, July 24.—The wheat market was very active today with a fairly large trade passing. There was excellent buying of July said to be for continental account, and very substantial short covering in the October. Altogether the market took on an entirely different appearance from the past two days, and is showing a good upturn and on the extreme upturn were 2½ to 3½ above last night, with July leading the advance.

Export sales over night were somewhat larger than expected, and local exporters appeared to have worked a little business, with total sales probably close to 1,000,000 bushel. Offerings were very large at times and at mid-session the market declined over two cents getting down to last night's close but again the buying came in and prices reacted to the high levels of the day and held strong. The market had made a break of 10c from Saturday morning, and to-day's upturn was only natural. There was little change in the general level. Liverpool closed 2½ to 3½ lower about in line with our decline of Monday.

Weather conditions in Western Canada continue very favorable and there is no doubt that record crop is nearing maturity. Showers were general in southern Manitoba, but the rest of the West was dry with rather warm temperatures which are needed. In the cash market there was a fairly active demand for practically all grades, some number 3 northern having been worked for export, while shippers were after the lower grades which are scarce. Spreads were mostly ½ per cent. higher but the food grade was 3c better. Winnipeg futures closed 3½ higher. Coarse grains—Trade volume was again small in the coarse grains, but the strength in wheat gave the market a stronger tone and a fair upturn was recorded from the early weakness. There was some short covering but consumptive demand was limited. Oats closed ½ lower to ¾ higher, barley unchanged to ¾ higher and rye 1½ to 2½ higher. Flax—This market was weak in sympathy with the sharp decline in Duluth, not much pressure but demand is very moderate. Closing prices 1½ to 1½ lower.

FIVE DROWNED
AT FERRY'S SIDE

Accident on Lake Washington at Seattle Takes Lives of Japanese

Seattle, July 24.—Five Japanese, four of them members of one family, were drowned in Lake Washington last night when an automobile plunged from a ferryboat at Leach Park. Three others were rescued. T. Suda, driver of the car, in his haste to board the ferry lost control of the machine, which ran through the boat and plunged through the gates at the bow. Suda, his wife, two of their children and a neighbor lad were drowned.

THREE RESCUED
Setuko, the oldest daughter of the Sudas, her twelve-year-old brother, Sanaye, and Takeko Takisaki, six-year-old boy, were rescued unconscious. They were given first aid at a nearby boat-house.

Scores of passengers waiting to board the ferry were thrown into screaming panic when the tragedy occurred. Police were told Suda's car was the last one in the line of twenty-five cars and waiting for the signal to go aboard. At the signal "All aboard," the Japanese left the line of waiting cars and drove his machine furiously down the slip in an apparent attempt to be first on the ferry.

The packed machine dashed on the vessel while ticket takers made a vain attempt to stop it. Veering, it sideswiped a wall of the ship in passing through, splintered the barriers on the boat and the car was cast into the water a few minutes.

The three children were rescued by persons at the scene before the police arrived.

McKinley Will Arrive Monday
With Good List

With 200 tons of general cargo and thirty passengers for this port, the American Mail liner President McKinley will arrive from China, Japan and the Philippines early Monday morning, according to word received in the city this morning by W. M. Allan, local agent, from company headquarters in Seattle. In addition to the cargo and passengers, the McKinley has about 100 bags of mail for this port. For Seattle the liner has several hundred passengers, a capacity cargo and silk goods valued at several million dollars.

Outbound for China, Japan and the Philippines, the President McKinley, of the same line, will sail from this port on Saturday afternoon about 6 o'clock with a good passenger list and a full cargo. The Jackson will sail from Seattle at noon and arrive here about 4 o'clock. She will put to sea en route to Yokohama, her first port of call in the Orient, as soon as local passengers, cargo and mail have been taken aboard.

NEW DUCHESS SHIP ARRIVES

C.P.R. Liner Duchess of Atholl Reaches Quebec on Maiden Voyage

Quebec, Que., July 24.—With bunting fluttering from all points of the ship, the Duchess of Atholl slowly steamed into her berth at Quebec Sunday morning on her maiden trip from Liverpool. The new 30,600-ton unit of the Canadian Pacific S. S. Lawrence fleet, in command of Capt. Guy Hamilton, brought a large number of passengers and her arrival was the occasion for many to make their way to the Louise Basin and witness the liner, a sister ship of the Duchess of Bedford, berth alongside the breakwater.

Viscount Colville, son of the military secretary to a former Governor-General of Canada, was one of the passengers on the new Duchess of Atholl. He is expected to be a regular passenger on the line, where he has a summer home, while another traveler of note was R. N. Little of The Chicago Tribune, returning home after a three-month vacation on the other side of the water.

J. E. Hobday of Toronto, superintendent of the Dr. Barnardo homes, brought with him a party of forty-four children for the home, while the traveling list also included L. G. Smith, manager of the Canadian Marconi Company; E. H. Adams, comptroller of the British Columbia Electric Railway, and a host of others, among whom were many passengers destined for the Pacific Coast.

SEEK HIT AND RUN STEAMER

Insurance Firm Seeks Identity of Ship Reported to Have Run Down Boat

The identity of an alleged hit-and-run ship which is reported to have run down a fishing boat Friday night and proceeded on her course in spite of distress signals was being sought yesterday by a Seattle marine insurance firm. A formal report of the collision has been made to Seattle customs authorities and it is expected that a request for an investigation of the case will be asked to-day.

According to the story told by John Thorngren, owner of the trawler Queen City, he and his partner were proceeding to the trolling banks off Cape Flattery and while near Point No Point noticed a steamship rapidly overhauling their craft. The larger vessel, when but a short distance away, sounded three blasts, indicating that the engines were in reverse, but a few seconds later she crashed into the stern of the fishing boat and then proceeded on her course. Thorngren says he sounded distress whistles until the rapid sinking of the craft forced them to launch the small boat, in which the two men made the shore. Saturday they found the half-sunken Queen City lying awash near Point No Point, her cargo of rice having kept her afloat. The craft was towed to the marine ways of the Fishing Vessel Owners' Association at Salmon Bay yesterday, where repairs will be made.

Fire on Freighter
Put Out By Seattle
Fire Department

Seattle, July 24.—Fire in the 400-ton cargo of fish meat on the Pacific steamship Ketchikan, which broke out Saturday night while the vessel was en route to Seattle from Southeastern Alaska was put out yesterday by the Seattle fire department after a long fight. The blaze was confined to hold No. 2 and did not damage other cargo of the ship.

San Francisco, July 24.—Guy L. Buck, freight traffic manager of the Panama Mail Line, announced here yesterday that the surcharge on all cargo from the Pacific Coast to Corinto, amounting to twenty-five per cent, had been eliminated. AT THE MILL

A close view of a large roller mill is given above. This great mill can grind a hundred times as much grain as the old water mills. The great tank-like structures are wheat elevators which take the wheat from cars or boats and send it up into the mill as needed. These elevators hold thousands of bushels.

By NEA. Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge. Copyright, 1927-28.

After being scoured to remove impurities, wheat is led into these boxes which contain sets of steel and porcelain rollers.

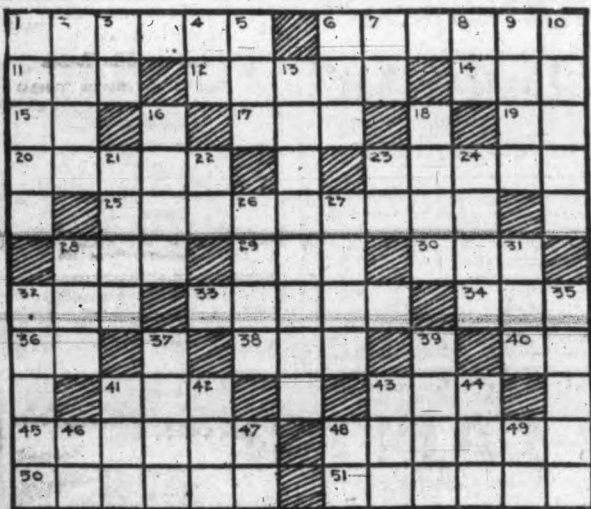

After the products have gone through the different sets of rollers, the flour is sifted through silk cloths contained in these tanks.

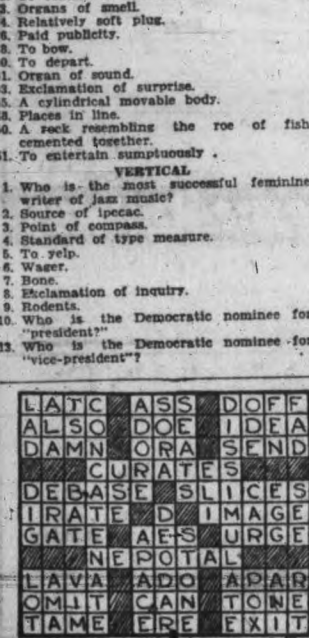

After the wheat has gone through the machines already shown, it is flour. Here it is being packed to be shipped to the baker and the grocer. The weighing machine will fill either barrels or sacks, and can be set to deliver any number of pounds. When the proper amount has come down, the stream is shut off, and another barrel wheeled into position.

To-morrow's Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, JULY 25, 1928
Contrary aspects seem to be strong today, according to astrology, and finds the rule a bit changeable.

The planetary government is an auspicious one for business men, and is believed to encourage enterprise and success. There is a promising sign for new ventures of many sorts, and there is good chance of success where the element of risk is involved. Judges and lawyers are well directed under this way which presages important litigation, especially where state and federal interests are involved. Women may find this a day unfortunate for their best aspirations, for their loftiest motives are likely to be frustrated. This is not a lucky wedding day.

making for suspicion and jealousy. It is more promising for men than for women. Farmers should profit from weather conditions this month and they may expect more satisfactory market conditions, it is indicated. Temperatures are moderate, and strong, but it should be resisted, for only conservative transactions are lucky at this time.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a prosperous year in which friends count for much. Children born on this day may be too imaginative and intelligent, but inclined to overrate their own talents. (Copyright, 1928.)

STEVENSON PARK TO BE IMPROVED

Improvements to Stevenson Memorial Park, at a cost of $2,000, will be commenced forthwith. The City Council last night approved expenditure of $1,000 of civic funds on the work upon being informed that an equal amount was available from other sources. To encourage construction of concrete sidewalks, the council changed the rule requiring property owners to pay one-half the cost, lowering the percentage to be paid to forty per cent, the city paying sixty per cent of the cost of concrete sidewalks.

The council believed that laying permanent walks was more profitable than wooden walks, for which many applications have recently been filed.

Sweetened instantly

Just a tasteless dose of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in water. That is an alkali, effective, yet harmless. It has been the standard antacid for fifty years among physicians everywhere. One spoonful will neutralize at once many times its volume in acid. It is the right way, the quick, pleasant and efficient way to kill the excess acid. The stomach becomes sweet, the pain departs. You are happy again in five minutes. Don't depend on crude methods. Employ the best way yet evolved in all the years of searching. That is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Impressions On First Trip Of New Plane

By Times Staff Representative

Here we are in the new plane, the first of its kind in the world, and all around us stretch the busy suburbs of Seattle.

Flying is taken for granted over here. There are several planes overhead. A navy biplane just zoomed up and sped across the lake. A commercial seaplane dropped into the lake to see the new Victor machine. Another small biplane from the Northwest Air Service fields has just taken off and is circling overhead.

A curious crowd is viewing the big Ford air liner which will this week go into a regular service between Victoria, Seattle and Vancouver. It is mostly composed of youngsters in bathing suits.

The plane is being tuned up preparatory to the trip to Victoria.

We'll soon be off. Most of the passengers for the inaugural trip have arrived. Frank Fretwell, president of the National Aeronautic Association, is aboard. So is Mayor J. C. Pendray and Mrs. Pendray of Victoria and Mayor Taylor of Vancouver.

FALSE START

Engineer Cressy, aided by other mechanics, is cranking the engine.

Splutter! Splutter! Woo-ong! There goes the left motor into action.

And there are the other two roaring.

Let's have the rest of the passengers aboard. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ewe are with us. So is Mrs. Cecil Ewe; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Ramsay, of the National Aeronautic Association, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cameron of Victoria and their 20-month-old son Donald. I guess we're all aboard.

Pilot Walker has opened the throttle. We're taxiing down the field. It's just 10:38 o'clock. At the end of the runway. A big roar and the plane is moving forward.

We're not taking off yet. The left motor is sputtering a bit. We're taxiing back to the aerodrome.

Engineer Cressy is out with his kit of tools. He's taking off the valve covers. It will take some time to fix things up, he says. Sticking valve!

Some of the passengers are getting out again. It is pretty hot inside, without the cooling breeze from the lake.

They've got the motor back in operation. No, it's not quite right. They're having another look. Ah, Cressy sees a valve spring out of adjustment. We'll have another half-hour to wait.

They've got the valve fixed now and everyone's back in the cabin.

TWENTY OF ROOM

This plane is spacious. There are sixteen of us here, excluding the baby and the dog, "P.T.," who is the mascot.

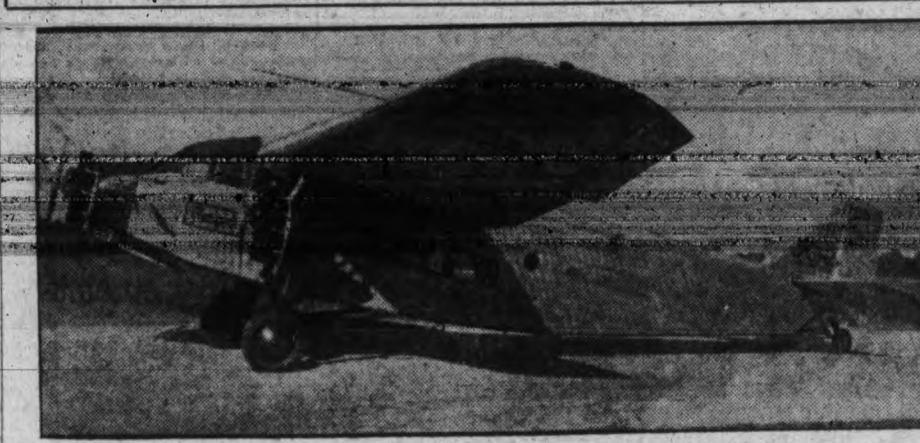

These seats are comfortable. Wicker-backed chairs with fine upholstery. There's a rack for hand-bags just over our heads.

With a whirr we're off again down the field. The wheel brakes bring us round to the runway in short order, and again Pilot Walker "opens her up."

We're speeding up now, watching the ground. The wheels are off. We're in the air and over Lake Washington.

This is easy—just like an automobile.

BETTY COMPSON PLAYS LEAD IN CAPITOL'S FILM

There is nothing more entertaining than a well-performed, mystifying farce-comedy, and there is no better example of this than "Cheating Cheaters," the latest Universal-Jewel production, which opened at the Capitol Theatre last night.

Like all good pictures of this type, the star must become involved in some embarrassing or difficult situation and by the aid of assistants becomes more deeply involved in the affair. Well, that's just what happens to Betty Compton, the bewitching little blonde, who gets herself into a peck of trouble and out again in "Cheating Cheaters."

Betty Compton plays the stellar role of her colorful career in this farcical crook production opposite Kenneth Harlan, and the pair is surrounded by capable supporting players. Eddie Gribbon, who is well-known for his comical burlesque roles, contributes many humorous interludes.

The stage attractions at the Capitol Theatre for this week include Morris and Wilma, Argentine acrobatic dancers; Ed. Merritt, the well-known banjoist; Wilma Brown, lyric soprano, in song selections; and Harold Bechtel, the singing "M.C." The Capitol Concert Orchestra completes the vaudeville bill, which will be presented twice daily.
